Nurturing, Directing and Redirecting Student Behavior

October 31-November 1, 2009
Marriott North, Indianapolis, IN

No Nonsense Methods that Begin the Era of Parent and Student Accountability and ends the Era of Apathy

It is time to transfer responsibility and accountability from the school to the parents and students. New legislation requires positive behavior supports, behavioral conferences, behavior plans, and RtI behavioral interventions. Streamline these processes into one and have a solid and consistent delivery in your classroom and school-wide.

Participants will examine their own paradigms regarding the concept of discipline and how personality type, emotional maturity, and developmental norms affect student development. Participants will learn what to say, how to say it, what to do, how to do it, and what not to say when interacting with students and parents. Documentation is made simple, straightforward and accountability driven. Utilizing these transformational methods with students and parents will not just change student behavior but transform student attitudes and conquer apathy.

In this powerful two day seminar you will learn the interactive methods that develop SELF-discipline, SELF-direction, & SELF-esteem resulting in each student maximizing their academic and personal potential.

We Will Examine:

- ◆ Historical Development of Student Apathy and the Eroding Population of Self Disciplined & Self-Directed People.
- ◆ Teacher Attitude, Behavior and Perceptions
- ◆ Student Attitude, Behavior and Misbehavior
- ◆ The Measurement Gap Between Character, Personality, Displayed Behavior, and Good 'Ole Fashioned Manners.

You Will Learn How To:

- ◆ Conquer Student Apathy
- ◆ Create Student Accountability
- ◆ Create Parent Accountability
Yes, that reads P-A-R-E-N-T
- ◆ Establish Solid Boundaries and the Artistic Skills for Effective Redirection When Necessary.
- ◆ Eliminate Negotiating and Arguments

We need to get away from the mindset that we are preparing students to be self-leaders when they can be self-leaders now. Create a culture where the expectation of self-discipline, self-direction and self-leadership is the expected norm. Stop robbing students from their intrinsic development. Stop doing for students that which they can do themselves.

You don't want to miss this information packed, hands-on experience to change your classroom and school on Monday morning!
